

Abstract

The present invention relates to an improved method for isolating ingredients from biological material, in particular from sugar beet (Beta vulgaris).